

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, July 25. 1704

From the Paris Gazette a la main, dated July 28.

Paris, July 28.

THE 26th the Duke d'Elboeuf arriv'd at Court, with the News that the Garrison of Vercelli capitulated the 19th. That in Consideration of the vigorous Resistance they had made, they were allow'd to march out of the Breach with all Marks of Honour, but on Condition to lay down their Arms as soon as they were come out, and to be conducted Prisoners to Cazal. They march'd out and submitted themselves Prisoners accordingly, in number 14 or 1500 Foot and 230 Horse. When the Siege began the Garrison consisted of 13 Battallions and 500 Horse. Those that did not march out are either dead, wounded, or Sick, or had deserted. To day another Courier arriv'd from the Duke of Vendome with Advice, that having given necessary Orders for demolishing the Fortifications of Vercelli, he is march'd with the Army towards Ivrea, in order to besiege it. 'Tis said the Garrison consists of 3000 Men, but 'tis presum'd they will not hold out above 10 or 12 days after the Trenches are open'd. After which we shall lay Siege to Turin. 'Tis confidently reported that the Duke of Savoy is inconsolable for the loss of Vercelli; that he has express'd his Trouble upon it to Count Staremberg; that hot words pass'd between them on that Occasion; and that he told the Count, that since neither the Emperor nor his Allies, had furnish'd the Succours they promis'd him, he should be oblig'd to take other Measures, and to think of preserving his Dominions. The last Letters from Germany confirm, that the Marshal de Tallard left Villingen the 20th to march and joyn the Elector of Bavaria. 'Tis thought he may arrive in the Camp under Ausburg about the 2d of August. The Marshal de Villeroi has made a Detachment from his Army, which joyn'd to another from the Body commanded by the Count de Coignies are to march to Flanders, where they may arrive the 8th of next Month. We have Advice, that the Fleet commanded by Sir George Rooke arriv'd the 8th instant at Lisbon; the Count de Thoulouse set Sail from the Islands of Hieres the 22d and steer'd for the Streights. So that we expect to hear of Action between them.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated August 2.

Heilborn, July 26. Upon the Arrival of Prince Eugene of Savoy near Rotweil, the French broke up from before Villingen and march'd to Dutlingen, in order to march down the Right side of the Danube to Ulm, with all possible Expedition, for which reason, every Soldier carries a certain Quantity of Meal for Subsistance. Prince Eugene of Savoy is likewise marching towards Bavaria. The Letters from the Army of the Allies are not yet arriv'd, but from the Places situate in the Neighbourhood of their Camp we have Advice, that the Elector of Bavaria's Army near Ausburg is very much straiten'd, and that the Allies would attempt to force his Intrenchments this day being St. Anne's Day, whose Name the Empress and the Queen of England bear. A great many French Soldiers deserted in their Passage thro' the Black Forrest.

Hague, July 31. We have Advice, that the Marshal de Tallard having lain some days before Villingen, and lost 600 Men in attacking it, on the receipt of a Letter from the Elector of Bavaria pressing him to make haste to his Assistance, gave over the Siege, and the 22d in the Evening march'd towards Bavaria, by the way of Donau-Eschingen and Dutlingen. The 23d Prince Eugene of Savoy entred Villingen and took a View of its Fortifications.

From the Amst. Gaz. Aug. 1. & Amst. Cour. Aug. 2.

Ausburg, July 23. The Army of the Allies being advanc'd to Fridberg and Lechhausen, the French and Bavarians abandon'd those two Places, and the Allies took post in them. The Elector of Bavaria rode to take a View of them, and narrowly miss'd being kill'd by a Cannon shot from Fridberg. His Army is strongly intrench'd: Bread can hardly be got here for Money. We are in Expectation of some considerable Action. Some French Troops being commanded the 17th to convoy some Corn to Gersthofen, were attack'd by the Imperialists, who made 300 of them Prisoners. The same day the Margrave of Bareith sent a Trumpeter to desire a personal Conference with his Electoral Highness, but was refus'd. Our Communication with Munich is cut off. The Electress is in Munich, with several of the Nobility. That Place is said to be garrison'd with 8000 Men, who are commanded by the Count of Monasterole. The Boors of Tyrol have besieg'd Hohen Aschau. The Bavarians have abandon'd Kempten.

Deux Ponts, July 25. Last Night the Marquis d'Alegre encamp'd with 12000 Men at Phalsbourg, from whence he will continue his March to the Netherlands.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated Aug. 1.

Macstricht, July 29. The 26th of this Month, the Army commanded by Monsieur d'Auverquerque began to bombard Namur from the Hill of St. Barbe, directing as well as possibly they could their Bombs towards those Places where the Magazines stand; the Bombardment was continued the 27th and 28th, and several great Fires have already been seen in the Town, but were soon extinguish'd. The Church of the Jesuites cannot but be much damag'd. The Garrison of the Place fire vigorously from their Cannon and Mortars, and have already kill'd Collonel Vander Hare, and wounded the Major of his Regiment. The 27th Lieutenant General Dedem went from hence, with a strong Guard, to go to the Army on the Danube.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated August 2.

Hague, July 31. Letters from the Army commanded by Monsieur d'Auverquerque confirm, that they had thrown Bombs and shot red-hot Bullets into Namur, the 26th, 27th, and 28th. A Detachment of several Battallions and Squadrons, have taken Post at Dinant; and another Party are pass'd over from thence into the Country between the Sambre and the Meuse, to raise Contributions.

There

There are no Letters by this Post from the Army in Bavaria, nor from Switzerland, nor Italy.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated Aug. 2.

Hamburg, July 29. Letters from Warsaw say, the Cardinal Primate, the great General of the Crown Army, and other Senators and Waywods who were not present at the new Election, have own'd Stanislaus the First for King of Poland, congratulated him thereupon, and conducted him to the Royal Palace. The King of Sweden has likewise congratulated him by a Letter, and has had a personal Conference with him, and promis'd him Assitance of Men and Money. The Ceremony of Coronation will shortly be perform'd, and a new Crown is making on purpose. Both the Princes of Lubomirski, and two of the chief Officers of the Crown, are come to Otwock near this Place wth 7000 Men to serve the new King. The Swedish Army is marching towards Sandomir.

Tarmonth, July 21. This day appear'd in sight of this place 7 Men of War, one of them with a Flag at the Mizen Top-Mast-head, which is suppos'd to be Rear-Admiral Whetston, who having Intelligence of the Dunkirk Squadron, is sail'd in quest of them.
